Purpose

This conference is designed to refresh, inform and support those in the health ministry, Faith Community Nursing and other health care professions, as well as renew a commitment to rural public health and learn about group dynamics which will enhance health ministry.

Target Audience

This workshop is designed for nurses, social workers and others who work in health care.

Objectives

Participant will be able to:

- Create a personal and community definition of health
- Complete a vision with goals for a practical model of Faith Community Nursing
- Create an individualized report identifying personal strengths, motivators and preferences for leadership
- Identify sources of conflict when working with groups
- Apply strategies for success when leading groups
- Demonstrate collaboration techniques and communication skills for use when working with groups

Speakers

Rev. Daniel Johnston, MDiv, has a Masters of Divinity in Pastoral Care and is the Director of Spiritual Development at Nebraska Methodist College, working with students, faculty and staff.

Dennis Berens, MS, BS, has education degrees in Psychology and Sociology and is the Director of the Nebraska State Office of Rural Health (SORH). He has given numerous presentations on health care during his tenure with the Nebraska SORH.
